Roblox is a popular website, application, and game platform, hosting over 163 million monthly users as of July 2019 and over 35 million monthly active users as of June 2019. The website and application both host user-created games. The site and apps use the programming language Lua for most of its mechanics and user interface, while others can be created in the Java and HTML platforms.

Roblox went live on July 26, 2006.[1] Roblox has developed a reputation for being a particularly abusive website for children. When Roblox was an invitation-only, closed beta, a redesign in 2007 enabled new users to register, and more users created content. However, Roblox did not prepare for this change and many of the people who created content were around the same age as some of the users. Roblox's creators were frequently abusive and considered by some to be exploitative, with the founders receiving far more attention than the game creators. Several of the site's moderators and staff have since left the company.

Roblox has faced controversy as a result of their practices around moderation and child exploitation. Roblox has received criticism for their practices around moderation and child exploitation. Roblox's moderation team has abused their position of power and deleted games for a variety of non-violent reasons such as misusing the Roblox tag, failing to remove content if the content was made using the in-game scripting tool, and sending messages to users for no apparent reason. Some users complain that the moderators' treatment of them has resulted in them being banned or having their accounts disabled. Roblox's policies and moderation practices in general has been called extremely heavy handed.[citation needed] Contents Roblox was founded by David Baszucki, the CEO, and Erik Cassel, in October 2004 as a place to create online worlds. The site was based on the engine of Open Universe which was the first multiplayer browser-based multiplayer game to receive commercial distribution.[4] Roblox allowed users to create their own game worlds. The game worlds appeared within a separate website. The founders of Roblox made the world "accessible to everybody". While still in early development, the first game created was Ocean's Legacy, and it was released shortly after Roblox went live. The user made Ocean's Legacy was extremely popular. David Baszucki and Roblox grew rapidly. In November 2006, the developers released the second game, Roblox. Robl

This is a warning, please don't abuse this and stay safe About Roblox, Robux and Gold - What's the difference? Robux are the in-game currency of Roblox. First introduced in 2014. All exclusive Roblox servers like Roblox Studio have Robux available for sale or you can unlock them and earn them in the game. They are also the main currency in the popular Multiplayer Online Battle Arena known as Roblox Arena. You can either trade Robux for Gold or buy them in real-life money. Robux are red and Gold are green. The colored Robux make it easier for people to spot if they are the real Robux or not. Robux is always generated in the game if you are logged in. Some Robux players don't have any and are looking for free robux generators. They run in a separate server and pass the Robux to the player without any limit. Using Robux Generators This is an open warning for free Robux generators: Anyone can set up a Robux generator. We are trying to find free robux generators without any secret ties to your Robux account. They could also abuse your personal information (like your real-life name, email or phone number). Remember to delete the generators once you are done with them to protect your account and avoid potential harm to you. Common users have already used all over the internet and created highly-trafficked websites just to generate free robux. Click here for detailed information about Robux generators. It's impossible to know who is setting up a Robux generator and how much free Robux they are generating for you. Robux Generators are often looking for personal information, like your real-life name, phone number or email. Some have been setup with hidden links to an Internet marketing agency. When players are in-game and are connected to a Robux generator, it is called a proxy. It acts as the middleman between the player and the Robux generator. When this happens, the player has no idea who they are communicating with. Many of them are also storing your personal information for their own use. What can we do to protect against robux scams? One of the main points of a Robux generator
