The dk rap lyrics

The lyrics of this song have gained immense popularity and it was actually written by Grant Kirkhope. This song was performed by George Andreas, as well as Chris Sutherland. In addition to that, several Rareware staff members also joined in for the chorus part. Several reports suggest that this song is particularly famous because of its "so bad it's good" natured lyrics. Some people stated that the rapping, as well as the lyrics of this song is quite poor. But, it can also be considered as an intentional stylistic choice on Kirkhope's part. Because of this reason, this song and its lyrics has been criticized by several video game publications, as well as journalists since its launch. The rap begins with Cranky Kong's hands mixing records on a turntable and thereafter, the sequence cuts to the five playable Kongs in a group. In addition to that, Chunky Kong is seen wearing a 1970s-era disco outfit. But soon, he rushes offscreen and changes into his regular outfits. Then, as the rap proceeds, each Kong is introduced in the order - Donkey Kong, Tiny, Lanky, Diddy, and lastly, Chunky. The lyrics of the song explains the Kongs' abilities, strengths, as well as weaknesses to the players. In addition to that, the players will also be able to hear some false statements throughout the rap.
